

Help Wanted: Personal Climate Assistant!

Never heard of Personal Climate Assistant (PCA)? You might more and more. Could you be the first person in a new job category?

Are you an energetic person, maybe just getting into the workforce? Ideally someone who's not like me – an older white guy?

It's a great opportunity for you to get fairly paid to do what you care most about and connect with my broad network of caring, smart, resourceful, influential people.

WHY?

Like so many people, I'm way over-extended. I'm an entrepreneur and startup person who doesn't want to stop trying to see what takes off.

Since declaring victory on an eight-year campaign to get carmakers to build a new kind of car – plug-in hybrids like the Chevy Volt – I've become what people now call a "climate hawk." On my own and with activist groups, I've been trying to find "missing pieces" in climate change awareness and cleantech solutions.

I've published some well-received, ambitious, embryonic proposals at The Guardian, Huffington Post and Grist.

It's obvious I'm stretched too thin! So I've decided to get some help.

Before I head off to Paris for the Climate Summit at the end of November, I'm working on ambitious projects. Best case they might help add putting a price on carbon to the currently limited agenda of what we expect from COP21.

These days at public events, I'm hearing what's intriguing people most and suggesting we all start thinking about what we can do about climate change – our paramount challenge. I'm asking everyone I meet if they know someone who might be my PCA.

HOW?

For intriguing details, check out <http://beyondcassandra.org/climate-assistant/> and <http://FelixKramer.com> and find me.

If you see this flyer, it's at the end of the link above or write fkramer@calcars.org and I'll send you one with links.

That's our family with with our two plug-in cars + e-bike all fueled from the sun. Plates: GAS R.I.P & COAL BAD

November 2015